About The Contractors' Labor Hotline

The business of construction has become a complex process due to new project delivery systems, the shifting risk among parties and inherently complicated construction contracts.

Since many contractors do not have the resources to maintain a full-time legal staff, the Builders Association developed the Contractors' Labor Hotline in 1999 as a service to help members save money on legal expenses.

All contractor members are eligible to use the Hotline. Use of the service by members is limited to consultation that directly pertains to labor issues affecting the firm's construction business.

No attorney-client relationship is established by the assistance given through this service.

How The Hotline Works

Through this service, participating Builders Association attorney members, experts in construction law, provide contractor members with a FREE 20-minute consultation to obtain initial guidance on legal issues.

This consultation can help your firm:

- Identify the core legal issues of your problem
- Evaluate the options regarding how to best address the problem
- Avoid costly and time-consuming litigation whenever possible

How To Use The Hotline

The Hotline is easy to use:

1. Call the Builders Association.

To use this free service, call 847-318-8585. A staff member will ask you a few questions to help us evaluate your inquiry and direct your call.

2. An expert attorney will contact you shortly. After speaking with Builders Association staff, a participating attorney will ask for the details of your problem.

3. Obtain valuable legal guidance.

Once the attorney has considered the facts of your problem, he or she will define the core legal issue(s) of your problem, answer your questions and provide you with guidance regarding options and the best way to proceed.
